

Bob Wekesa

Dr Wekesa is the Director of the African Centre for the Study of the United States at the University of the Witwatersrand (Wits), South Africa. His teaching, research, and public engagement work focuses on Africa's geopolitics. He has taught, supervised postgraduate projects, and published on the interdisciplinary perspectives of international media and communications, foreign policy, and diplomacy. Wekesa is also involved in conferencing, training, and networking initiatives on these topics at the policy and civil society levels. These include Africa-China, Africa-US, and Africa in the world topics.

Over the years Wekesa's work has been published as thought leadership articles in newspapers, academic journal papers, book chapters, books (single-authored), and as policy papers, and discussion/position papers. He is a frequent commentator on current affairs on radio, podcast, and television shows globally.

He leads or has led several research projects, served as lead organizer for conferences and colloquia and fundraised for projects and initiatives on Africa's place in the world. He also consults for several local, regional and international organizations.

A Commonwealth Press Union Fellow (UK, 2002), Wekesa holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Nairobi (1998) and master's and doctoral degrees from the Communication University of China (2012 and 2015 respectively).

He is the interim coordinator of the Africa-U.S. Universities Network, a fellow of the University of Southern California's Centre on Communication Leadership and Policy, and a visiting professor at Howard University. He is also a board member of the Chinese in Africa/Africans in China Research Network and an ordinary member of the South African Communications Association, the South African Association of Political Studies, the East African Communications Association, the African Studies Association, and the International Relations Society of Kenya, among others.
